

Second Rainbow Dream

Many years ago I shared a dream on the Five Doves that was the first of two dreams I had about rainbows. It has been so long ago that I can no longer find that post on the website. I will share the first dream again because it ties into the second dream.

First Rainbows Dream:

It was night and completely dark outside. I was looking out our glass door that faces toward the east when a rainbow appeared in the night sky. I hurried to get my husband so he could see. When we got back to the door, there were seven rainbows in the sky. My mother was staying with us and was sleeping in one of our bedrooms, so I went to tell her she needed to come see. She told me she was too tired to come look. When I came back, the seven rainbows were still there, but now there were circle rainbows. There were so many of these circle rainbows, no one could have counted them. Then fire and brimstone began falling to the earth out of the center of the circle rainbows. When I saw this, the fear of the Lord came upon me. I fell to my knees, and so did my husband. The dream ended.

When the Lord gave me this dream, he knew I would remember this verse:

“The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom ...” Proverbs 9:10

This is the interpretation of the dream the Lord showed me. The darkness represents the darkness that is coming on the earth during the tribulation. The seven rainbows each represent one year during the tribulation. At the end of the seven years, God will pour out his wrath on the earth.

Second Rainbow Dream:

I had this second dream on August 9, 2009, many months after the first dream.

In this dream, I was standing on the western coast of some European country. It was dark again, and I was able to look across the Atlantic Ocean and see all of the United States. It looked like every big city was burning. I knew America had been destroyed. I was born into a Christian military family, so when I saw this, I felt such deep sorrow for my country. This was worse than anything America had ever seen before.

There was someone standing in front of me looking toward the United States, too. This person was wearing a hooded cloak, so I could not see any part of his face. I knew whoever was in front of me was the one responsible for what was happening in America.

During all of this, the Lord was to my right, looking at my right profile as He showed me these things. He was in the air about 10 feet off the ground and was surrounded by a bright light. The Lord spoke and said, “Behold the Man of Peace.” I was so shocked that he would say this that I immediately turned my head toward him and said, “Not so Lord, for you are the true Man of Peace.” The Lord replied, “Yes, but this is who men will call the ‘Man of Peace.’”

After these words were spoken, I saw a white dove flying down from the North Pole area and over the Atlantic Ocean. The dove got maybe 20 yards away before it appeared to reject this man and turned to fly back to the north again.

Then, a rainbow appeared in the dark sky over the Atlantic Ocean. The Lord finally had the man who was standing in front of me turn around so I could see his face. Immediately I knew in my spirit that this was the devil. He was so evil that I wanted to spew him out of my mouth.

When I told this dream to my family and friends years ago, the best way I could describe the individual I saw in front of me was as an “older, more evil Obama.”

Two months to the day (October 9, 2009) after I had this dream, it was announced that Obama had won the Nobel Peace Prize. This was also the last day of the Feast of Tabernacles.

Three and a half years after I had this dream, the made-for-TV miniseries “The Bible” aired and depicted the devil exactly as I had seen him in my dream. Interestingly, the Satan/Obama lookalike image (shown below) was cut from the film one year later.

After these things seemed to confirm what the Lord had shown me in my second dream, I thought for sure that things would begin to happen during Obama’s presidency, but the Lord reminded me that he was older in the dream.

The first rainbow appearing could mean the beginning or the completion of year one of the tribulation.

At the time I had this dream, I felt led by the Lord that it was not yet time to publicly release the second dream. The Lord has told me it is now time. We are so close to his second coming. We need to be ready. Pray for the will of the Father to be done.
